Val, I would appreciate some further assistance. First, could you arrange for me to see the Report of the "UK Royal Commission on Criminal Justice 1992/3" - that is how it is described at page 11 of Sir Thomas Thorp's Opinion on the Ellis Petition. Second, could someone have a look at the UK legislation setting up the Criminal Cases Review Authority, referred to on the same page. It is I think relatively recent - of course it followed the spate of miscarriage of justice cases in various prominent trials. What I am interested in is the standard (if any) set to justify intervention by the Tribunal. Thank you. T.E.
